Dear Grandpa

Although you held my hand
Just for a small period of time
But you have held my heart for a life time
To snatch too many memories from time.
But all those that I have are,
No less than gold for me,
The way you held my hand down the stairs
The breeze through your swings,
Brought comfort, ease and took away,
All my pain and fears
The sweet little highlights,
of rushing down the kitchen
to get your favourites !
And many more such stories,
That filled my heart with pride.
Few which I now and many,
Which I have heard,
Your life was a blessing,
Your memory is a treasure,
Your smile was a grace,
You are loved beyond words,
And missed beyond measure.

A Nightmare

We all were sleeping peacefully in our bed, sleeping in pajamas of colour red.

This is when I had my worst nightmare, that my family got attacked by a bear !

Tears coming down from my eyes, I gave a loud shout, and my parents woke up with a doubt.

They asked me the reason why I shouted, was it a nightmare, and all I could say was "It was a bear!"

My parents were worried, they asked me how did I get this dream, in which they were attacked near the stream.

I told about the movie, 'The Relevant', which they thought was irrelevant to my dream.

Understanding my condition, they comforted me, and then I dived again in the sea of dreams .

The Harappan Civilization

In the nineteenth century, archaeologists discovered two cities, Harappan and Mohenjo Daro which were buried underground.

There were many different opinions about the name of the Harappan Civilization. In the beginning of research, the archaeologists found many artifacts near the river Indus. So, they gave name to this river as “Indus Valley Civilization”. But soon they found that Harappan Civilization was spread over the large areas of Pakistan, Baluchistan, India-Haryana, Northside of Rajasthan and Gujarat. Harappan Civilization was around 7,00,000 km. This civilization was divided into two parts: - Village Area and City Area. In the village area the main occupation was farming. They grew wheat, mustard, peas and cotton. But in the city, people were engaged in trading many places and they were very skilled. A big granary was there in the city of Harappa and Mohenjo Daro, which proved that the people kept food for future.

The buildings of Harappans were made of clay bricks. The archaeologists found two types of houses. Some people lived in the clay bricks houses which were baked in the ovens. Some houses were double-storeyed which proves some people were rich and some were poor. There were 27 wells which carried water into the houses. The dirty water could flow from the bathroom into a drain that carried into a large drain. Some seals were found which looked like unicorn-one horned animal. They were very religious people. But suddenly this civilization disappeared. Many scholars believe that the collapse of this civilization was due to an earthquake or due to the change in climate.

The Foolish Servant

THE FOOLISH
SERVANT

Once upon a time there was a king and his servant. The servant was very lazy. One day the king said to the servant, "I'm going to my bedroom don't disturb me." After sometime from the window a butterfly came inside. The butterfly was disturbing the king. The servant took his knife and started catching the butterfly. By mistake he cut off the king's ears. The king was very angry and he dismissed the servant from his duty.

THE ELEPHANT WHO LEARNT A LESSON FROM THE ANT

One day an elephant was walking in the forest. He was very proud and imagined himself to be the king of the forest.

As he was walking by, he saw a bird's nest in a tree which was full of eggs. To show his might he wanted to drop the nest down and destroy the eggs. When the mother bird flew away he succeeded in doing it.

Then he saw some ants walking on a branch carrying food in their mouth. Just to trouble them he dropped them down by stamping his feet on the ground. The ants were angry with him and one of them asked him, "Elephant, why are you doing this?" The Elephant replied, "I am the King of the forest. I can do whatever I like."

The ants were very angry with him and decided to teach him a lesson. One of them, the bravest of them all, went to the elephant at night when he was asleep. He entered the elephant's trunk and started biting him.

The elephant woke up with a lot of pain in his trunk. He tried hard to get the ant out, but he did not succeed. He realised that though being so huge he couldn't get the ant out. The ant quietly asked the elephant, "Is it paining my king?" "Yes," replied the elephant. I beg you to forgive me." "Then you must say sorry," said the ant. The elephant asked for forgiveness. The ant replied, "Now you know how it hurts others when you trouble them." The ant took pity on the elephant and came out of his trunk.

The elephant learnt a good lesson. From that day he was kind to everyone. The elephant and ant became good friends.
